Charles Schenck died in Brooklyn in Sepember, 1886, and the day before his death he made a will leaving all his property to his widow and cutting off Richard Schenck, his son by a previous marriage, without a dollar. The latter is now suing to set aside the will, and yesterday Surrogate Lott heard the testimony in the case.

The contestant testified that on the day the will was made he was sent out three times on frivolous errands by his stepmother, and he mivelous errands by his stepmother, and he knew nothing of the execution of the will.

Mrs. Johanna Grosete testified that Mrs. Sehenck agreed to make a will in favor of her stepeop, if the property was left to her. When the dying man was asked to sign the will he asid: I have no time: wait until to-morrow."

Witness then supported Mr. Schenck up in the bed, and Mrs. Schenck put the pen in his hand, and guided his hand when he wrote the first name.

August Stade, one of the witnesses to the will, testified that he was told to sign the paper. It was of no consequence. Mr. Schenck twice asked for his son, but he was not there. Mrs. Pligrim testified that on the day before he died Mr. Schenck asked repeatedly for his son, and said that there were ghosts running around in the corner.

Ar. Grosche testified that Mr. Schenck told him that he wished his wife to have all his property as long as ahe lived, but that after her testified that Mrs. Schenck told him that he wished his wife to have all his property as long as ahe lived, but that after her testified that Mrs. Schenck told him that he wished his wife to have all his property as long as ahe lived, but that after her testified that Mrs. Schenck told him that he wished his wife to have all his property as long as a he lived, but that after her testified that Mrs. Schenck told him that he wished his wife to have all his property as long as a he lived, but that after her testified that Mrs. Schenck told him that he wished his wife to have all his property as long as a he lived, but that after her testified that Mrs. Schenck told him that he wished his wife to have all his property as long as he lived, but that after her testified that Mrs.

Judge O'Gorman yesterday fined Deputy Comptroller Richard A. Storre $25 for contempt of court, in having disobeyed the order of the Court requiring him to appear before Referee John Whalen and be examined in the suit of the city against John Brady and others. The Judge also awards 510 costs, and direct that, unless Mr. Storre appears before a the referee Fithin four days and submitts to an examination, he be farther punished.

MARRIAGE BROKING IN BROOKLYN. Mr. Peck's Suit Against Mr. Coldstein to

Samuel S. Goldstein, the Myrtle avenue clothier, appeared in Justice Courtney's Court in Brooklyn yesterday to defend the suit brought against him by Robert Peck of 46 Smith street to recover $50, a portion of the fee still due him for his alleged services in pro-curing a wife for Mr. Goldstein. The matrimonial agent did not show up, and Justice monial agent did not show up, and Justice Courtney dismissed the case.

Lawyer O'Brien, who appeared for Peck, said that his client's absence was due to the fact that he did not know that the case was to be tried yesterday, and that he would bring another suit. He said:

"Mr. Peck's claim is a just one. Goldstein told him that he would like to procure a wife with plenty of dust, and Peck introduced him to a number of Jewesses. He made an engagement for Peck to call on one of them who was worth $8,000. Her parents, however, ordered him not to call upon her. Peck then looked around and found another pretty young Jewess named Mary Harris, an orphan, who was worth $4,000, and a speedy marriage followed. Goldstein promised to give Peck $100 for his services, but he has only paid him $50."

Mr. Goldstein aidd: "I never had occasion to employ any one to procure me a wife. The lady to whom I was married jast month I had known for nineteen years. I knew her when she was a child. My wife is worth $30,000 instead of $4,000."
